Justine Aboud-Chamely
ESG Chairperson

As the ESG Chairperson of Amalgamated Security Service Ltd, I am honoured to address our stakeholders on the essence of Environmental Social Governance (ESG) in fostering sustainable communities. At Amalgamated Security, we believe that our responsibilities extend beyond delivering exceptional security solutions; they encompass contributing positively to the societies we operate in. Our commitment to ESG is ingrained in our corporate ethos, guiding our actions towards making meaningful and lasting impacts.

First and foremost, our ESG initiatives prioritize community development. We recognize that sustainable progress is achieved through collaborative efforts that empower local communities. Through strategic partnerships with local organizations and government entities, we identify pressing needs and tailor our interventions to address them effectively. Whether it's supporting education initiatives or fostering environmental sustainability, our aim is to uplift communities holistically.

Education stands as a cornerstone of societal advancement. We believe that every individual deserves access to quality education, regardless of their socio-economic background. Hence, we invest in the Anthony Joseph Foundation which provides grants to students who wrote the Secondary Entrance Assessment (SEA). Furthermore, we are committed to promoting safety and well-being. Beyond our core security services, we actively engage in and conduct workshops, training sessions, and awareness campaigns.

Healthcare access to our employees is another area where we channel our ESG efforts. We recognize that health is a fundamental human right. Through partnerships with healthcare providers and community clinics, we support initiatives that provide essential medical services, health screenings, and preventative care. Additionally, we prioritize initiatives aimed at combating prevalent health challenges, such as disease outbreaks communicable and non-communicable diseases.

Environmental stewardship is integral to our ESG agenda. We acknowledge the importance of preserving natural resources. Therefore, we implement eco-friendly practices within our operations and champion environmental conservation initiatives in the communities we serve. Whether its sea turtle conservation or waste management programs, we strive to minimize our ecological footprint and promote sustainable living practices. Moreover, our commitment to ESG extends beyond philanthropy; it encompasses ethical business practices and corporate governance. We adhere to stringent ethical standards and uphold principles of transparency, integrity, and accountability in all our dealings.

In conclusion, at Amalgamated Security Service Ltd, we view ESG not merely as an obligation but as a core driver of our business philosophy. Through our multifaceted ESG initiatives, we aspire to create positive social, economic, and environmental impacts that contribute to the long-term well-being of the region. As we continue on this journey, we remain steadfast in our commitment.

Thank you.

Justine Aboud-Chamely
ESG Chairperson

Why ESG at ASSL?

ASSL has always had a clear understanding of the impact that its actions have on employees and customers.

However, over the years there has also been a growing recognition of the significant effect its activities have on communities, competitors, business partners and suppliers, governments, and others. It has become increasingly clear to ASSL that it can contribute to its own and overall societal wealth by considering the effect it has on the general environment it exists within.

A Process-Based ESG Framework

In a broad understanding of social responsibility, respectively corporate social governance, both concepts are more and more often defined by their ability to positively impact on three bottom lines of an organization: economic, social and environmental. As can be seen from the principles, fundamental practices and core subjects of ISO 26000 (as well as from other models), stakeholder involvement (versus shareholder involvement) is a critical success factor in thriving for sustainable development of any organization.

Stakeholders' needs and expectations have to be translated into business strategies and consequently those will have to be embedded into the day-to-day operations of the business and evaluated as any other business investment. ESG now becomes a way of running organizations profitably yet in a social and environmentally responsible way in order to achieve business sustainability and stakeholder satisfaction.

With this understanding it therefore makes sense to develop a process based ESG framework that could integrate with the existing quality management systems (which are ideally ISO based). Once the ESG activities are integrated into an organization's operations, continuous monitoring will determine if stakeholder expectations and needs are being met.

Stakeholders

ASSL's stakeholders include but are not limited to: shareholders, business partners, suppliers, lenders, insurers, communities, regulators, government, intergovernmental bodies, clients, and employees.

- ▶ Primary stakeholders typically are internal stakeholders that engage in economic transactions with the business (for example shareholders, suppliers, customers and employees).
- ▶ Secondary stakeholders are usually external stakeholders which, although they do not engage in direct economic exchange with the business, are affected by it or can affect its actions (for example the general public, communities, business support groups, and the media). Choices regarding the ESG agenda are driven by the needs of the firm's most powerful stakeholders (as perceived by the ESG Committee).
